

The Tomhannock Cooperative Area is operated by the NYS Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) in cooperation with the Department of Public Utilities of the City of Troy under provisions of the Fish and Wildlife Management Act.

Tomhannock Reservoir provides a variety of sport fishing.

During the open water season, yellow perch, black crappie and bluegill comprise the biggest share of the panfish catch, while smallmouth bass are the most important game fish. Largemouth bass, chain pickerel and walleye are also available.

During the ice fishing season, the action centers around yellow perch, black crappie and chain pickerel. Bluegill and walleye round out the catch.

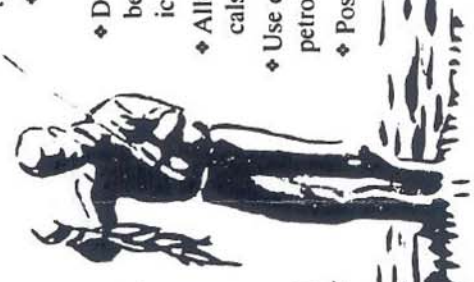

Tomhannock Reservoir, a 1,700-acre public water supply, services Troy and surrounding communities.

For this reason, special rules and regulations apply to protect its water quality. Boating and wading are prohibited. Except as otherwise provided, the Environmental Conservation Law (ECL) and DEC orders with respect to open seasons, size limits and catch limits shall be in effect.

Fishing permits, which are revocable, are issued by Troy's Department of Utilities. Special permits may be issued at the discretion of Troy for uses other than fishing.

The ice fishing season runs from January 1 through March 15 during daylight hours only. Ice fishing is permitted only on that part of the reservoir from the dam southerly to a continuous line extending between two orange markers and on that part from the south end of the reservoir northerly to a continuous line between two orange markers (see map).

Troy's Department of Public Utilities and DEC reserve the right to eject anyone from the area for disorderly conduct, intoxication or any behavior that endangers the general safety or health of people in the area.

Some simple rules to follow while using the Cooperative Area.

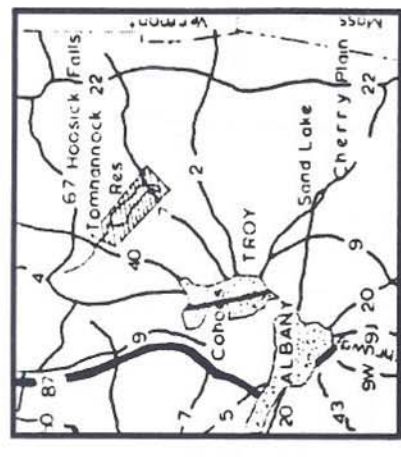

DO:

- ❖ Carry your permit when on the area.
- ❖ Show your permit upon request of a Department employee or authorized official.
